Sliced Products market

Nowadays the market of the sliced products can be divided in two segments, one segment dedicated to the low speed lines, from 40 to 60 trays per minute, and the other one dedicated to the high speed lines, from 100 up to 160 trays per minute.

Low Speed

Generally speaking these are high quality lines and the products are really fresh appealing. The solution that G. Mondini provides is based on an extreme flexibility between different packaging formats and materials and on a single-lane configuration for the loading to easily suit the needs of sliced products.

Pre-made trays can be highly customized in shape and embossing, increasing the perception of a high quality product by the consumer and reinforcing the branding. A wide range of packaging materials is offered, from foam to paperboard to rigid plastic, increasing the differentiation allowed. Printed top film or lid are useful to emphasise either the freshness of the product or the brand.

High Speed

These are usually mono-product lines, dedicated to the long run. G. Mondini supplies customized solutions integrating the equipments for the automatic loading of the slices into the trays, providing the best possible configuration to match with the speed required and to cope with the needs of the product. A sealed barrier film, which is meant to keep the easy-peel feature, is sometimes coupled with a non-barrier rigid lid to grant the recloseability of the pack and to maintain the freshness of the product once the pack is open. The high flexibility of the system is also guaranteed by the change over, which is as practical and quick as in all the other tray sealing applications.

Shallow packs

- Protruding of the product for an excellent product visibility.
- Proper film grants good barrier and easy peel.

Clear rigid base

- Quality perception thanks to a higher rigidity of the trays and a better definition of the pack.
- Increased peelability.

Recloseability

- A non-barrier rigid lid with a snap-on feature to grant extended freshness once the product is open.
